

For the Love of Animals - a collaborative project

Malcolm Bernstein, Founder of the Benjamin Project, and Lisa Browning, Publisher at One Thousand Trees, have teamed up in an exciting collaborative project in support of local humane societies and/or animal shelters.

Partnering with various elementary schools, the goal of the project is to produce a children's book about how important animals are to us, and how they benefit our lives.

There are currently five books in the series:

- Mother Earth Helps Us, by students at Quinte Mohawk School in Tyendinaga; in support of the Ontario SPCA & Humane Society, Lennox & Addington
- For the Love of Animals (Guelph), by students in Guelph; in support of the Guelph Humane Society
- For the Love of Animals (Peterborough), by students at St Patrick Catholic Elementary School; in support of the Peterborough Humane Society
- For the Love of Animals (Toronto), by students at Pleasant Public School in North York; in support of Toronto Humane Society
- For the Love of Animals (Georgian Bay), by students in the Georgian Bay area; in support of various organizations supporting animal welfare

All books are available on Amazon, and all net proceeds from sales are donated to the afore-mentioned organizations.
